Poisonous Plants *

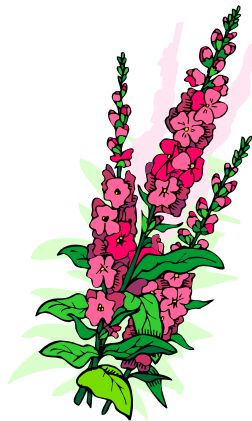

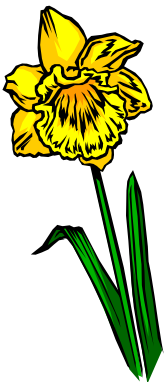

The San Joaquin Valley has one of the most diverse plant populations in the nation. While this is no surprise to anyone living here, it may cause concern to learn that many of these plants pose a hazard to our pets. The consumption of some plants can cause great harm to animals, even death. Keep in mind, house plants can be poisonous too. If you suspect your pet has eaten any part of a plant, however small the amount, contact your regular day time veterinarian immediately. If your veterinarian is not available, seek emergency veterinary care. Fresno Pet Emergency and Referral Center wants your pets to be healthy and safe. We are dedicated to assisting you and your pets in every way possible and are available 24 hours a day, seven days a week “because concern never sleeps”.
